

"Look how Hesse punctuates quotes."

She . . .

begins with a capital

ends with punctuation

surrounds both words and punctuation with quotation marks

"Come on, rain!" I say, squinting into the endless heat.

Mamma lifts a listless vine and sighs.

"Three weeks and not a drop," she says, sagging over her parched plants.

"Come on, rain!" I say...